[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, November 13.
FORTS GRANT AND SHERMAN.—At last two great army fortifications are to bear the names of the dominating military leaders of the federal forces during the Civil War. In Panama the names of Grant and Sherman will be thus honored in military fashion. At the instance of Brigadier General E. M. Weaver, chief of the coast artillery corps and acting chief of staff, the Secretary of War has approved the assignment of the name of General Grant to the fort at the Pacific terminus of the Panama Canal and those of General Sherman, General Wallace F. Randelph and Ferdinand De Lesseps to the sea coast forts near the Atlantic terminus.

The names assigned to the several batteries being constructed at Fort Grant are those of prominent corps or division commanders of the Civil War for whom atteries have not already been named, including the names of Major General John Newton, one of Grant's corps commanders who was subsequently chief of engineers and president of the Panama Railroad; Major General Wesley Merritt, Sheridan's division commander and the first military Governor of the Philippines; Major Gen-Gouverneur K. Warren, a corps com mander who achieved fame by the capture of Little Round Top, thereby winning the battle of Gettysburg; Major General Don Carlos Buell, a prominent corps commander: Major General Ambrose E. Burn side, a corps commander who also commanded the Army of the Cumberland; Major General John G. Parke, a corps commander who was afterward superintendent of the Military Academy; Major General Charles F. Smith, a division commander whom Grant said won the battle of Fort Donelson, only to die at Shiloh Names of General Sherman's corps and division commanders not already so honored will be assigned to batteries of Fort Sherman as follows: Major General O. O. Howard, Major General David S. Stanley Major General Joseph A. Mower and Major General Judson Kilpatrick. The names of the following prominent artillery officers are assigned to the batteries at Fort Randolph and Fort De Les Brigadier Generals John C. Tidball, Stephen H. Weed and Charles H. Morgan and Brevet Major General Alexunder S. Webb ORDERS ISSUED .- The following orders
